

MAY SEND DEWEY AND A FLEET.

Washington Officials Favor American Naval Showing at Coronation.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—Admiral Dewey's name is suggested as the commander of a large squadron, comprising the best types of our new ships, to be present at the coronation of King Edward VII. The Navy department has not taken up the question of naval representation, but the suggestion concerning Admiral Dewey and a squadron of fine ships meets with general approval among high officials. The ships recently ordered to the European station are not considered fair representatives of our new navy, as the Albany is foreign built, the Chicago is one of the early products of the new navy and the Nashville a comparatively small gunboat. It is expected that the naval pageant at the time of the coronation will bring together some of the finest ships possessed by European countries and for that reason it is urged that the United States should be represented by some of its ships under Admiral Dewey.

NEW BUSINESS CHINATOWN.

Improves on the Old as That Did on the Older.

Many people will remember the great improvement in business Chinatown when rebuilt after the conflagration of 1888. Its present rebuilding, after destruction in 1900, is making as much greater improvement over the later Chinatown as this was over the older one. Substantial brick buildings are springing up, quite a number even being already occupied, from Smith along King street to the river. On the Armstrong lot near the junction with Queen street the walls of a two-story stone building are up. Smith and Maunakea streets will not know themselves when all the large and shapely brick blocks being erected along them are completed. It is true, there are many huge wooden buildings in course of erection upon rear lots, but on the whole they are more presentable structures than most of those they supersede. The great thing, so far as sanitation is concerned, is that new business Chinatown will be connected with the sewerage system.

Rawlins, who are occupying the Pratt premises at Wai-iki for the summer.
